

Chakra Power & "The Tree of Life"

There are seven primary energy levels of Chakras and ten integrative levels on the traditional "Tree of Life". In addition, the "Tree of Life" is divided into four worlds. From top down they are; Archetypal (Spiritual/Fire), Creative (Mental/Air), Formative (Astral/Water), and Active (Material/Physical/Earth).

The corresponding Chakras of the "Tree of Life", along with the other systems of tantric thought, are related to the seven primary levels of human consciousness. They govern the senses, and are channels into and out of this realm, and connect the central points of interaction that exist between the individual soul, the outside world, and the presence of God which inhabits all. The soul's task, once it has entered into the mystery of life, (the only "land" the individual soul is permitted to rule over), is to explore the darkness, that is to go down into the empire of its own existence, and to engage the lower thought forms and to overcome them whenever they are found. The soul must spend its entire lifetime bringing the faculties of the body and mind into subjection, and in the process illuminating or opening up the Chakras, and bringing each of them to the light, and into service of higher reality. When the lowest Chakra is subdued - brought under subjection, illuminated - the whole body is full of light, and the mystical union between the mind of God and the mind of the individual soul is completed. (Or rather can be completed with proper alignment of concepts and right revelations.)
